Center Merchants Register Complaints About Continuing Centerway Disruption

by Diane Oberg

The merchants of Roosevelt Center turned out at the November 26 regular council meeting to protest the disruptions to their businesses resulting from the reconstruction of Centerway and what they saw as inadequate communication from the city regarding the project. Council directed staff to prepare a report on the problems encountered to date, assist the merchants to find out how to make insurance claims for damages to their property and provide as much information as possible to both council and the merchants on the schedule for the remaining work.

Centerway Reconstruction

The sidewalks, drainage system and roadway along Centerway at Roosevelt Center have been undergoing a complete reconstruction since June by contractors hired by the city. The work was originally planned for completion by Labor Day but is now scheduled for completion in December.

Leonard Wallace, of Realty One, said that the effect of the project on the Roosevelt Center businesses is "becoming a crisis." He complained that the city was not keeping the merchants informed of the status of the work and that the 10-day closing of Centerway was "killing" the center's business. Wallace estimated the loss to his business at more than $10,000 and requested weekly, written updates from the city. He reported that construction workers had jackhammered out the cement under four businesses' doorways and asked for a qualified, independent company to inspect the doorways. He said that several businesses were inaccessible for a lengthy period because the stairway near Sovran Bank had been removed and the area closed to pedestrians while Centerway was closed.

City Manager James K. Giese said that the city had had continuous problems with the contractor for several months, during which the contractor had not provided adequate staff or supervision. As a result the workers had to redo much of the work, which extended the construction period. Wet weather required the contractor to close Centerway for longer than expected to ensure that the mortar in the paving material set properly. Giese did not expect any further street closings this year, except for temporary interruptions for tree work and installation of street lights.

The street will have to be closed again in the spring so that the final surface can be installed. Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson explained that the city expects, due to poor soil conditions under the street, that there will be some spot failures. Therefore, See MERCHANTS, page 5

Four City Officials Plan To Retire Within the Year

by Diane Oberg

On Sunday, December 9 the city will hold a retirement dinner for George Smith, the city's Director of Public Works, and Phillip R. Coombes. Smith officially retires at the end of the year after 12 years of service, Coombes will leave February 1.

Coombes is a police lieutenant currently serving as adjunct officer to the Office of the Chief of Police. As such he assists the chief in overseeing all areas of operation of the department and has served several times as acting chief when the chief was away. He has been with the department since 1966, the longest service of any officer currently on the force. Previously Coombes headed the department's patrol division.

Smith is the first of three senior city officials expected to retire by the end of 1991. He will be followed by City Clerk Gudrun Mills and City Manager James K. Giese. Neither Mills nor Giese has set a definite retirement date, although Giese expects to retire by mid-year. Several other senior city employees are currently eligible for retirement but have not yet announced plans. The retirement of so many senior officials within a relatively short time represents a major change in the leadership of the city, perhaps the most significant change in its history.

The city manager has the sole responsibility for hiring the public works director. Similarly, whoever is city manager when Mills retires will hire the new city clerk. To find a successor to Smith, the city has advertised nationally in public works trade magazines and sent notices to public works departments and engineering firms. Giese told the News Review that he is currently screening applications and scheduling interviews but has not yet set a definite time by which he will have hired the new director.

The public works director oversees the second largest department in the city, second only to the police department. He is responsible for the city's refuse collection services; overseeing the construction, repair and maintenance of city buildings and facilities, streets and sidewalks and storm drainage structures; and maintenance of the city's automobiles. The public works director also is responsible for the city's parks.

City Clerk

While the city clerk is most visible to citizens in her role as keeper of the minutes of council meetings, she is also responsible for a wide range of duties, including maintaining all the official records of the city; preparing ordinances and resolutions for council action, as well as codifying and distributing the final laws; preparing legal ads and notices for publication; researching state laws and city records; keeping abreast of county, state and federal legislative actions and arranging for and overseeing all

Castaldi to Head County Council

Richard J. Castaldi was elected chairman of the Prince Georges County Council by his colleagues for the legislative year beginning Dec. 4. He succeeds Jo Ann T. Bell who served as chairman for the past two years.

Anne MacKinnon was elected vice chairman, replacing Frank P. Casula.

Castaldi, of Greenbelt, was elected to his third, four-year term on Council last month. He represents the Fourth Council District.

Castaldi is a former mayor of Greenbelt who was with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission for 20 years prior to being elected to Council. He is considered an expert on planning and zoning and transportation.

Castaldi in remarks on accepting the gavel from Bell emphasized the need to "steady the effects of the economic down turn that has beset our County."

But despite the economic picture, Castaldi said the County must maintain and improve "the strides made in our public schools, as well as in areas of public safety."

As to other issues, Castaldi said the County "must continue to recognize the integrity of our neighborhoods, protect the environment and ensure that there are adequate public facilities to accommodate the growth that is beneficial to the entire county."

Arts Advisory Committee Plans Holiday Open House

The Greenbelt Arts Advisory Committee will host a holiday open house on Thursday, Dec. 13, at 8 p.m. at the home of local writer Dorothy Sucher. Greenbelt writers, musicians, performers, and artists of all kinds are invited, as well as citizens with an interest in promoting the arts in Greenbelt, especially those who might like to serve on the committee in the future.

A particularly warm invitation is extended to newcomers to Greenbelt, as well as to those who may not have been involved in civic activities before. This will be an opportunity for arts-loving Greenbelters to meet others with the same interests, to express concerns, and to have a voice in efforts to make the community a more hospitable place for the arts.

The Arts Advisory Committee was formed by the City Council in 1988 and is responsible for advising the Council on arts-related matters, guiding the city's arts policy, and assisting city arts organizations.

Proposed Arts Center

The Committee, chaired by artist Barbara Simon, is currently involved in plans to include an arts center in the proposed community center at the Center School building. Space being sought includes room for arts education classes in all the arts, a theater for the performing arts, studios for visual artists, a desktop publishing facility that could be used by community groups, and a coffee-house. Committee members have been meeting with the architects in preparation for an upcoming public workshop on the new community center, tentatively set for January 12.

Committee Projects

Since its inception two years ago, the Committee has developed an arts policy for the city, conducted an arts survey, participated in the creation of a successful arts camp for children last summer, and served as the city's liaison with such groups as the Prince Georges Arts Council and the Cultural Alliance of Washington. This winter's activities will focus on obtaining business support for the arts in Greenbelt, and the possible formation of a friends of the arts in Greenbelt group.

For further information, call Barbara Simon, 474-2192, or Cathy Corona-Salgado, at the Recreation Department, 474-6878.

Santa will visit the Youth Center on Saturday, December 15, from 10 a.m. until noon. Coming with his helpers, he will hear children's Christmas wishes. If parents bring a blank VHS videotape, someone with a camera will record the child's visit.

Party and Carol

Senior citizens are invited to a Christmas party at the Greenbelt American Legion Post No. 136 home near the junction of Greenbelt Road and Lakecrest Drive, beginning at 11 a.m. on Thursday, December 13.

Clarification

To the Editor:

During the recent campaign for County Council, a letter of support for County Councilman Richard Castaldi was sent to residents of Greenbelt in my name from Mr. Castaldi's re-election campaign.

This letter was sent out with my personal support and approval as I have been an avid supporter of Richard and was very involved in his re-election effort. The letter mentioned my affiliation with both the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee and Hunting Ridge Condominium Association, both as Chair and President, respectively.

It has been brought to my attention that some recipients of the letter interpreted this as a political endorsement from the two organizations. I want to clarify that both GEAC and HRC, as organizations, refrain from endorsing any political candidate.

I apologize for any misinterpretations this letter may have provoked. The campaign letter was intended to demonstrate my own personal support. Mention of my affiliations was intended to inform the reader of my qualifications as a community leader.

Ice Capades Stars Tell Their Secrets

by Tim Farris, Age 6

We went to the children's press conference. The skaters from Walt Disney on Ice answered our questions about the show. They told us they loved being in the show and love skating.

Jamie-Lynn said she had been skating since she was nine years old. The stunt skaters, who play Chip and Dale, have skated since they were toddlers. They also said they liked our weather.

Then Roger Rabbit and Mickey Mouse came out. Roger Rabbit confessed that he lost his teeth because he did not brush regularly.

Mickey revealed his age (63) and his love for Minnie Mouse. They served delicious fruit and cookies. There were books and Mickey Mouse Ears, too.

Once we got inside ice capades we had to wait a long, long time and I really wanted a snow cone, but they cost too much and my mom wouldn't buy me one. So I sulked and wouldn't say anything about the show.

Officials Retire

city elections. Mills has served as city clerk since January 1970.

Giese has been city manager since December 17, 1962. His 28 year tenure is twice as long as that of any previous city manager. In this position, he has been responsible for the operation of the city government. The city manager is ultimately responsible for all city personnel decisions, for making budget and policy recommendations to council, for anticipating and providing for the future needs of the city and for ensuring that decisions of the council are implemented.

Change

The city has changed a lot since Giese's appointment. Greenbelt was much smaller in 1962, consisting of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., the original portion of Lakeside, Lakewood, Woodland Hills and the first few units of Springhill Lake. Giese's first budget was for $780,000, compared with today's $10.2 million dollar budget. The police force, which had just six officers at the time of his appointment, now has 45 authorized positions for officers, and 18.5 authorized civilian positions. The December 20, 1962 News Review announcing Giese's arrival contained just two items in its Police Blotter — a report on a stake-out at the theater in response to a report of a planned hold-up (the robbers never showed) and the arrest of a child for cutting some Christmas tree lights.

None of the current council members were on council when Giese was selected; in fact, the first of the current council to be elected to that body, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, was not elected until nine years after Giese's appointment. As a result, the council members must first develop a procedure for finding a city manager, then actually proceed with the search. Council held a work session with Anna Owens, mayor of College Park, and council member Jim Coyle of Rockville to learn how those cities have found new managers and what the officials learned in the process. The council members have also met with some executive search firms.

Search

Council member Antoinette M. Bram told the News Review that council is still in the very early stages of this process. The council members are working to develop a position description detailing the responsibilities and requirements of the post. They have received proposals from a number of executive search firms but as yet have not definitely decided whether to employ such a firm, or if so, which one. However, Bram says it is "probable" that council will employ a search firm. She emphasized that whether council hires a consultant or conducts the search itself, all qualified applicants, including those currently employed by the city, will be considered seriously. The council members have been researching several firms and are scheduling some executive (closed) work sessions with them.

Bram noted that, based upon the experience of College Park and Rockville, council could receive 150-170 applications. Culling these resumes to a reasonable number for interviewing will be a very time-consuming process. She said that the consulting firm would perform the initial screen of applicants. Council would retain the freedom to step in at any stage of the process and could review the rejected applications if it wished. Although council has not yet established a schedule for replacing Giese, Bram cautioned that it will be a "long, tough process."

CITY NOTES

The special details crew continued working on the Centerway reconstruction project and the city office remodeling.

The streets crew installed sewer pipe on Ridge Road, dug a trench at the Police Facility for the fuel dispensing system, and worked at the Recycling Drop-off Center.

The parks crew worked on repairing playground equipment, maintaining fields, and assisting in the leaf collection.

The horticulturist crew worked on planting the trees at the Center.

Sunrise Stop Work Order Upheld by County Board

The Prince Georges County Board of Appeals in a decision reached Nov. 13, denied the appeal of Sunrise Development of the Stop Work Order issued by the Department of Environmental Resources. The Board determined that the developers had failed one prong of the state's two-prong test for vested rights.

At issue was whether the developer must comply with the R-18C zoning approved in the Sectional Map Amendment of May 1990 or had a vested right in the prior R-10 zoning, which would have permitted construction of a high-rise, 12-story apartment building.

The Test

The two-prong test demands: (1) a manifest commencement or labor on the ground which everyone can readily see and recognize as the commencement of a building; and (2) work begun with the intention and purpose to continue the work until the completion of the building.

Sunrise, in its petition, contended that it had been pursuing approval and permits and had an approved site plan for the high-rise building; and that it had poured footings for the foundation of the building in December 1989, graded the site, and poured footings for a retaining wall in May 1990.

The Decision

The Board found that while the developers' design and approval efforts met the second prong, the work done at the site did not constitute a "manifest commencement . . . which everyone can readily see and recognize." The December footing, for a two-story portico, was not visible from the road nor to the Construction Standards Inspector who walked the property in May 1990, and does not constitute vested right for the construction of a highrise apartment building. Therefore, the developer did not meet the first part of the test.

The stop work order will remain in effect until there are approved permits for the development of the property in accordance with the R-18C zone.

County Council Authorizes Purchase of Hospital Site

The Prince Georges County Council on October 30 authorized the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to purchase the Glenn Dale Hospital site. The 209-acre facility is located off Route 450 just outside Greenbelt's jurisdiction. In a six to one vote, the county council passed CB-108 which authorized purchase of the property from the District of Columbia government. The purchase price is $3.9 million.

Voting against the measure was Council Member Sue Mills. Absent were Council Members Anthony Cicoria and Floyd Wilson, Jr.

The county executive and county council have indicated that they want most of the land to remain undeveloped. Standing on prime property in a rapidly developing area, the hospital could have become a target for private developers interested in highrise apartments and commercial space and thus increase exponentially the volume of traffic along Greenbelt Road.

History of Site

The jurisdictional history of the Glenn Dale site is long and complicated and Congressman Steny Hoyer played a major role in sorting it out. Built originally as a sanitarium for children with tuberculosis, which in the era before antibiotics usually required several years of bed-rest to effect a cure, the hospital was constructed on property deeded to the United States in 1930 for a District of Columbia project. Authorization to use the site for a hospital came through an act of Congress. The last patient was treated in 1972 and the hospital was closed.

In 1983, when the District of Columbia tried to lease the property, the federal government filed suit, claiming that the District could not control the property, since it was no longer being used for its original purpose. Nevertheless, both the U.S. District Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals agreed with the District that it could control the property, even though title was held by the United States.

In 1987 Rep. Hoyer described the Catch-22 situation in which the property then existed: "The federal government holds title, but has been found by the courts to have no right to control the property. The District controls the property and could lease it, if a lessor could be found. The District does not, however, have the right to sell it. Prince Georges County has an obvious interest in the Glenn Dale site, but no right to determine the disposition of it."

Bill Allows Sale

In order to clear up these ambiguities, Hoyer introduced a bill conveying title of the land from the federal government to the District of Columbia. Following passage of the bill by both houses of Congress, President Ronald Reagan signed it into law in October 1988.

In order to effect a sale of the property from the District a complicated formula was worked out by means of which D.C. Mayor Marion Barry and Glendening each selected an appraiser. Following their independent collection of data, the two appraisers would then select a third appraiser, who would set the price for the property based on information gathered by the other two. At the time the possibility seemed unlikely that the county itself could become the purchaser.

Merchants' Complaints

laying the final surface will be delayed so that the problem areas can be identified and repaired.

Giese said that the contractor's performance during the past month has been much better, with the owner frequently on the site. The major construction work is roughly 95 percent complete. He disputed Wallace's contention that the businesses between Sovran Bank and High's had been inaccessible while Centerway was closed, although customers did not have direct access and had to walk farther than normal.

The city manager conceded that the city had not done as good a job as it could have in keeping the merchants informed. However, he said that the city often received inaccurate information from the contractor, in part, because of weather and the problems of scheduling subcontractors. He also argued that both Wilson and the city's construction inspector are frequently at the center and that the municipal building is right next door, giving merchants "plenty of avenues for communication."

Parking

Another concern of the merchants was what they perceive as inadequate parking at the center, which they fear will be worsened by the expected opening of a movie theater and the Beijing restaurant. Wallace also complained about the amount of residential parking in the municipal lot near the Coop, saying that it was hurting the businesses.

Coop manager Bob Davis told council of watching customers circle his parking lot and leave because no parking was available. He feared that the problem would only get worse as the theater, restaurant and the indoor pool, currently under construction, bring additional motorists to the center.

Although Giese considers parking generally to be available, he agreed that the lot is close to capacity during peak hours. He said that he has "on stand-by" a plan for permit parking at the center, which would prohibit all day parking of cars without a permit. In addition, the city has recently increased the number of spaces available in the coop lot. Approximately 40 parking spaces in the lot nearest the municipal building have been freed by the relocation of the police department. Although he is examining parking alternatives, he noted that there are serious limits to the number of additional spaces the city can provide.

One possible way to increase the amount of accessible parking is to enforce the current restrictions. Giese said that he "has had discussions" with the police to do so. Another option is to increase the number of two hour parking spaces. However, Giese is reluctant to increase the restrictions in the coop lot, which would cause problems for the residents of the nearby apartments. He noted that those apartments have never had adequate private parking.

Rollicking "Christmas Carol" In Matinees at Petrucci's

by Mary Lou Williamson

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," the story of Ebenezer Scrooge and his transformation, now playing matinees at Petrucci's in Laurel through December 29, is delightful and rollicking holiday theater. The play is an original adaptation by Tony Reich, who also directs.

Scrooge, played by Michael Bunce, is properly crusty and mean, but somehow more to be laughed at than feared by the children in the audience.

Mary Lenning has created marvelous costumes for Marley's ghost and the three spirits who visit Scrooge.

Theater of the Mind

A cast of 12 plays over 40 roles in what is called "Theater of the Mind," where the audience is asked to use its imagination and, at times, to participate. Costumes are simple. Character changes just require donning a special hat and coat or shawl from the rack at the side of the theater. There are no props. The stage is extended into the middle of the audience. The voice of the narrator who sets the scene is shared by many, adding vitality and movement. A sprinkling of old English carols throughout the hour and 15 minute performance adds joy.

Matinee Series

"A Christmas Carol" is part of Petrucci's matinee series.

The series brings school children and senior citizens into a theater experience at 10:30 a.m., Monday through Saturday, followed by a hot lunch at 12:30 and a question and answer time with cast members at 1. Study packets are available for classroom teachers to better introduce the students to the shows which feature original adaptations of classic literary works.

The next production, January 15 through March 15, will be "Bound to Thee Forever," the story of Ira Aldridge, America's first internationally acclaimed will bring "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," a Mark Twain adventure. The matinee series has been awarded a $1,000 grant from the Prince Georges Arts Council.

Petrucci's Dinner Theater, at 312 Main Street, is owned and operated by the Petrucci family of Laurel. Four shows are produced during the academic year for the matinee series on the area's largest dinner theater stage. For more information, contact Angela Jo Petrucci at (301) 725-5226.

POLICE BLOTTER

Based on Information
Released by the Greenbelt
Police Department

Around 8:32 p.m. on Nov. 26, a woman taking groceries from her car in the 6000 block of Springhill Dr. was accosted by a man with a handgun. He demanded her pocketbook and her car keys, and she complied. No description is given of the man.

Around 10 p.m. on Nov. 26, a pizza delivery person was accosted after delivering a pizza in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Terr.: A man grabbed him; they began to fight and fell to the ground. Then the man pulled a handgun and demanded all the delivery person's money. The man is described as black, in his 20s, 5'10", 160 lbs., wearing blue acid-washed jeans, blue sweat shirt with hood, black baseball hat and white tennis shoes.

A young teenager, walking home along Springhill Dr. in the company of friends, was robbed of his jacket at gunpoint by two other teen-agers around 7 p.m. on Nov. 28. The robbers are described thus: (1) male, black, 15 - 18 years old, 5'6", muscular build, wearing a black ski mask, black short sleeve shirt and dark blue baggy jeans; (2) male, black, 15 - 18 years old, 6'0", thin build, wearing a black ski mask, red long-sleeve sweatshirt and dark pants.

In the rear parking lot of Beltway Plaza, around 8 p.m. on Nov. 21, a man was approached by two teen-agers who pulled a knife and demanded his money; he ran and the teen-agers did not get his money (one of them ran into a light pole). The teen-agers are described thus: (1) male, black, 13 years old, 6'0", 180 lbs., wearing a reddish jacket; (2) male, black, 15 years old, 5'8", 130 lbs., wearing a brown jacket.

As a man was walking home in the 5800 block of Cherrywood Terr. around 7 p.m. on Nov. 21, two teen-agers demanded his money, knocked him to the ground, and stole his eyeglasses. They were frightened away when someone drove by. They are described as male, black, 16-26 years old, 5'8" to 5'10", both wearing brown coats, jeans, and baseball caps.

After driving a woman to the 6000 block of Breezewood Dr. around 2:30 a.m. on Nov. 29, a taxi-cab driver got out with the woman, struggled with her, and demanded all her money, which she did give him. She then called the police, and Officer Richard Sullivan apprehended the taxi-cab driver. A 25-year-old non-resident, the taxi-cab driver was charged with common law robbery, appeared before a District Court Commissioner, and was held on $35,000 bond pending trial.

Investigating a complaint that people were selling jewelry in the front parking lot of Beltway Plaza around 10:30 a.m. on Nov. 28, Pfc. Steven Keller found that one of them had a knife in his pocket (a concealed weapon) Sgt. Allwang and Officer Rogers detained two other people who had drug paraphernalia; they were arrested and held on $10,000 bond and $500 bond pending trial. Both were nonresident males, one was 35 years old and the other was 39.

Three nonresident males, aged 28, 22, and 28, were arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute around 6 a.m. on Nov. 24 on Crescent Rd. One was held on $30,000 bond, another was held on $20,000 bond, and the third was held on no bond.

A 28-year-old resident male was arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (in this case PCP) around 2 p.m. on Nov. 23 in Beltway Plaza.

A purse was stolen from a residence on Research Rd. around 11 a.m. on Nov. 27: the resident had opened the back door to let the cats outside and then went upstairs for a short time, leaving the door open. When she came back downstairs, her purse was gone.

A breaking and entering was reported in the 9000 block of Breezewood Terr. on Nov. 21; upon returning home, the residents found their front door open and things stolen from every room.

A breaking and entering was reported on Ridge Rd. on Nov. 29; a window in a back door had been broken to gain entry while the residents were out.

On Nov. 23: a lock on a vending machine in Beltway Plaza was broken and cash stolen; cash was stolen from a locked closet at the Hair Cuttery; cash was stolen from a locked desk drawer in an office suite in the 7700 block of Greenbelt Rd.

On Nov. 24 a goosedown jacket was stolen from the Greenbelt Youth Center while its owner was playing basketball.

On Nov. 26: a breaking and entering of a storehouse in the upper level of Beltway Plaza was reported; computer equipment was reported stolen from an office suite in the 7500 block of Greenway Center Dr.

On Nov. 29 a breaking and entering of a storehouse on Golden Triangle Dr. was reported.

On Nov. 21 a light blue 1977 Chevrolet Caprice Classic, 4-door, VA tags TX1278, was stolen from the 6200 block of Springhill Ct. On Nov. 23 a burgundy 1989 Pontiac Grand Am, MD tags TBU 012, was stolen from the 5900 block of Cherrywood Lane.

On Nov. 21 Pfc. Carl Schinner pulled over a vehicle with a burned out tag light and found out that the tags no longer belonged to the vehicle. He arrested one of the occupants of the vehicle, an 18- or 19-year old nonresident male, for one count of misdemeanor theft.

Two nonresident teen-aged males were arrested on Nov. 29 for two counts of theft over $300 in connection with two stolen vehicles that they had been in, in quick succession. One was also charged with driving without a license, fleeing a uniformed police officer on foot, and common law resisting arrest. Both teen-agers were released to their parents.

While on patrol in the 7800 block of Hanover Pkwy. on Nov. 30, Pfc. Carl Schinner noticed a vehicle with a burned out tag light, found out that the vehicle had been stolen, pulled the vehicle over, and arrested the two nonresident occupants, 18- and 19-year-old males, for theft under $300.

Mayor Appointed

Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld will co-chair one of five advisory subcommittees recently established by County Executive Parris Glendening. The groups make up the "Committee for Continued Progress" which Glendening said was formed to "research the answers to various questions recommended by the County Executive in order to assess County services and citizen needs."

Glendening noted that although the concept is not new, it places "increased emphasis on the importance of reaching out to the community and building consensus among the people."

Weidenfeld will co-chair the subcommittee on Environment with Madge Yewel, member of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and an active community leader.

Other subcommittees will offer advice on education, human services, public safety and business opportunities.

Case on Hold

by Elaine Skolnik

In a further check of their records, the Office of the State's Attorney found that the arresting officer in the Wayne Allen Keys case had met with Assistant State's Attorney Roger Milstead in a timely fashion. The screening review took place on November 1. At that time Milstead determined that there was "insufficient evidence to prosecute" and referred the case back to the arresting officer for further investigation.

According to State's Attorney spokeswoman Alexis Revis-Yeoman, "there was not enough to tie him (Keys) to that particular crime."

Arrested in connection with a break-in on October 14 in the 24 court of Ridge Road, Keys was held at the Prince Georges County Detention Center in Upper Marlboro on $50,000 bond.

Keys was released after the prosecuting attorney at the November 15 preliminary hearing "declined to prosecute." No additional evidence had been presented to warrant holding him.

Revis-Yeoman explained that "declining to prosecute" does not prevent the prosecuting attorney from "recharging" an individual "nor does it mean that the case is dismissed."

"Right now we are holding on to the case in the event the arresting officer brings back enough information."

GHI NOTES

GHI offices will be closed at noon on Friday, December 14 for the employees' annual Christmas party. For emergency maintenance that day please call 474-6011.

The next regular Board of Directors meeting will be held on Thursday, December 20 at 8 p.m. in the Board room. Members are invited to attend.

NEED HELP? CALL CAN

The Maryland state government has started a new program to help citizens locate the proper state agency or agencies for assistance. Several agencies could be involved in one issue, for example, an environmental question could involve three or four agencies.

If a person has a question, complaint, or problem to be solved call the agency or department responsible during regular work day hours and ask for the Citizens Assistance Network coordinator (CAN). He or she will take it from there. If not sure which department to call then call CAN coordinator Luther Starnes at (301) 333-0388.

"When buyers think Greenbelt, they think REALTY 1."

Greenbelt Grab Bag

by Punchin' Judy

In the fall of the year there is a tendency for people to become nostalgic, to think of what has changed, what hasn't, and what is likely to come to be in the future. This year's autumn seems especially conducive to this type of thinking, since the foliage has retained its color so much longer than usual, since summer lingered on into November, and since our town is suffering/benefiting from the disruption/construction in the Center/Roosevelt

Mall area.

Notice the ambivalence in that last sentence! We love progress, but we hate what it takes to get us there. Personally, I can't wait to try out my new swim suit in the indoor pool! However, I do fervently hope that the renovations to the old pool building won't take away my favorite ego booster, the window on the right of the entrance door. That window positively makes my day each time I look at the image of myself that it reflects. No model could look slimmer or more svelte! There I stand, with legs so long and shapely, they would grace the Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue. Of course, I have to be careful not to glance at the window to the right of the flattering one, where, just like in a fun house mirror, I find a short, squat gnome looking back at me. This, too, is not all bad; when my diet needs a boost, the second window gives me the inspiration and will power to cut down on the calories.

It was in the fall of the year that I came to Greenbelt. At first I lived in a row house, but eventually, without moving an inch, I found that I was living in a town house. And to think that I moved to Greenbelt because I was tired of living in town! Nevertheless, there is a cachet, a touch of class about living in a town house, so I'm not complaining.

I do have one complaint, though. Actually, I have a great many, but I won't burden you with them. This one might affect you also, if you happen to live on or near Crescent Road. At least I thought it was Crescent Road, but a sign on Kenilworth Avenue informs me that it is Crescent Drive. Not only did the State Highway Administration change my address from a road to a drive, but they took away the 'e' in Crescent. Maybe that's a blessing in disguise, since no sales person who asks for my address seems to spell it right anyway. However, I refuse to have new stationery printed!

This being the thanksgiving season, I give thanks for the anticipated winter swims, the before and after window mirrors, and the opportunity to admire the Greenbelt foliage on Crescent/Crescent Road/Drive. Enjoy!

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!

With the mass amounts of clutch types of transaxles out in production today one type of system is the clutch cable controlled type. This type of clutch system incorporates a cable that works the clutch. In essence, it connects your foot with the transaxle so you can shift the transaxle in and out of gear smoothly. One common problem with these types of applications is the battery ground system. If you lose your ground between the vehicle's body and engine block, electricity will follow its easiest path to ground by any way it can. Nine times out of 10 it will try to go thru the clutch cable. The problem is this—the cable is a metal twine encased in a plastic housing not designed to flow electricity thus not allowing a good electric connection and when the voltage forces its way thru it melts the inner housing thus making the clutch very stiff to operate, kind of like doing leg presses at the Youth Center. With this in mind, it's very important to make sure the battery cables are good and clean and not in poor condition. This is one of the I told you so types of repairs, in addition some automatic types of transmissions utilize a shift cable. This could also happen to these types of vehicles, too. It's hard to imagine that this could happen, but it actually does. It's never ending; you have to be on your toes at all times or the allegator will sneak up and bite you right on your ! kazoo !

Local Development Projects Win Real Estate Awards

According to the Prince Georges County Economic Development Committee (EDC), 16 development projects located in the county have been selected as winners in the second annual "Pride of Prince Georges County Real Estate Awards Program." County Executive Parris N. Glendon was joined by County Council Chairman Jo Ann T. Bell and EDC Chairman Lance W. Billingsley at a dinner held in Greenbelt on November 9, to announce the 16 award winners.

Developed by the EDC at the request of the county council, the awards program recognizes excellence in architecture, as well as the contribution made by these development projects to the community's quality of life.

In the office park and high-rise office building categories, Capital Office Park and Capital Office Park Building 5, located off Kenilworth Avenue on Ivy Lane were winners. Both were developed by Springhill Lake Associates. The primary architect and land planner was the firm of CHK Architects & Planners and the site engineer was Greenhorne & O'Mara, Inc. Landscape architect for the office park was Donovan, Feola, Balderson Associates—for Building 5, Andy Balderson.

In the hotel category, Greenbelt Marriott Hotel, located in Capital Office Park, was the winner.

The hotel was developed by Springhill Lake Limited Partnership. The primary architect and land planner was CHK Architects & Planners; the Site Engineer—Greenhorne & O'Mara, Inc. and the landscape architect—Donovan, Feola & Balderson Associates.

The EDC is a private, non-profit corporation under contract as the county's economic development arm. EDC provides a wide range of business assistance including site selection, space procurement, research and statistics, education programs and networking opportunities.
